Not illustrated. 1897 Excerpt: .ibises, etc., and the above would be a fair average amount of food for each, how much room would be left in the ark after the heron tribe and their food was cared for? As they will not eat dead fish, large tanks of water would have been a necessity, with a process of aerating it and food for the fish until they were eaten. The 22 pachydermata would have required an average of 200 pounds of vegetable food per day. Hay would be most readily obtained although if no vegetables or grain was fed, a greater quantity would be used. At this rate they would eat over 840 tons of hay in 382 days. 3,500 clean beasts such as oxen, deer, antelope, sheep, goats, buffalo, reindeer--and the horse, zebra, camels, and numerous other animals not included in the clean list--would require not less than an average of 2 tons each. Farmers say it should be 3 tons each but 2 tons will make about 8,000 tons which is large enough for our purpose. Add to this 160 tons for the use of rodents, marsupials, insects and other animals that require food of this nature and we have a total of 9,000 tons. This would occupy 162,000 cubic yards or nearly twice the entire capacity of the ark. Baled hay is a late invention. But if the hay was baled it would require nearly one half of the entire capacity of the ark and with the...
