Mexico, who have gone thither in search of an establishment, temporary or definitive, and who have there interests of importance. If they are harassed and disturbed, they cannot rely upon their consuls, upon their fellow countrymen, upon their government, without fear of offending the Mexican government. If, on the contrary, they are treated with humanity, they cannot then rejoice at it or speak highly of it without passing for traitors to their country. I know that there are men who give themselves very little concern about these matters. We have the power, say they; our fellow-countrymen will be protected by our valiant army. Gentlemen, let us predicate nothing upon force. Moreover, that never suffices to justify and purify; what it establishes has its vicissitudes and its terrible instabilities. Let us base everything on right, on truth, on reason, on moderation; let us be persuaded that this is at the same time justice and good policy. In this way, gentlemen, there is no reason to fear disastrous retaliations; good examples are given; they are what we ought to give, and thence we shall derive honor and profit. It behooves France to take the initiative in everything; she is great enough, sympathetic enough in the world to have her example generally imitated and followed. (Warm manifestations of applause followed this defence, and were received by the court and audience without any attempt to restrain them.) The case was adjourned to the following day, the 6th, for final...
