Excerpt: .(15 cm.) long, was made over the front of the tibia, not including the wound, which made the fracture compound, with the technic described above. The fragments were approximated and fixed by two screws, passed obliquely through both fragments across the line of fracture. The wound was closed completely, and a sterile gauze dressing wet with alcohol was applied over it, the limb being completely enclosed in a cast from the toes to the middle of the thigh. No infection followed. He was discharged from the hospital, November 22, walking on crutches. The cast was removed eight weeks after the accident and he could walk without crutches soon afterward. He had not worked since the accident because he could get no work to do; but he says he was able to work a few weeks after the cast was removed. April 16, 1922, he had no shortening, the leg was perfectly normal in shape and length, except for slight thickening of the bone about the fracture area and he had perfectly normal function in the limb. Case 13.--A railroad brakeman, aged 39, Nov. 20, 1921, while shifting cars, was sideswiped by a passing car and thrown to the ground, his right leg especially being injured. It bled profusely and he arrested the hemorrhage partially by tying a handkerchief around the leg. A little later he was found by a fellow workman, who stopped the bleeding completely by tying the tourniquet tighter. He was brought...
