Excerpt: .or enlarged tonsils 12 per cent have defective vision serious enough to require glasses 5 per cent have seriously defective hearing 12 per 20 per 6 per 5 per 2 per cent indicate defective nutrition cent have been infected at some time with tuberculosis cent have nervous diseases cent have orthopedic defects cent have cardiac disease In order to check up the above estimates as to the frequency with which defects occur, the committee tested the vision and hearing of 290 children selected at random from the fourth and fifth grades in the five districts having a superintendent of schools. For the vision tests, the Snellen charts were employed. In testing the hearing, acoumeter and stop watch tests were made. Of the 290 children tested, 41 or 14.1 per cent showed defects so serious as to warrant consultation with an oculist, while only 4...
